

(LEFT) Killed at Grebbeberg, Eduard Peppelman, 24 years of age. He was a bricklayer and lived with his wife and ten-month old daughter at what today is Halseweg 41 in Halle.

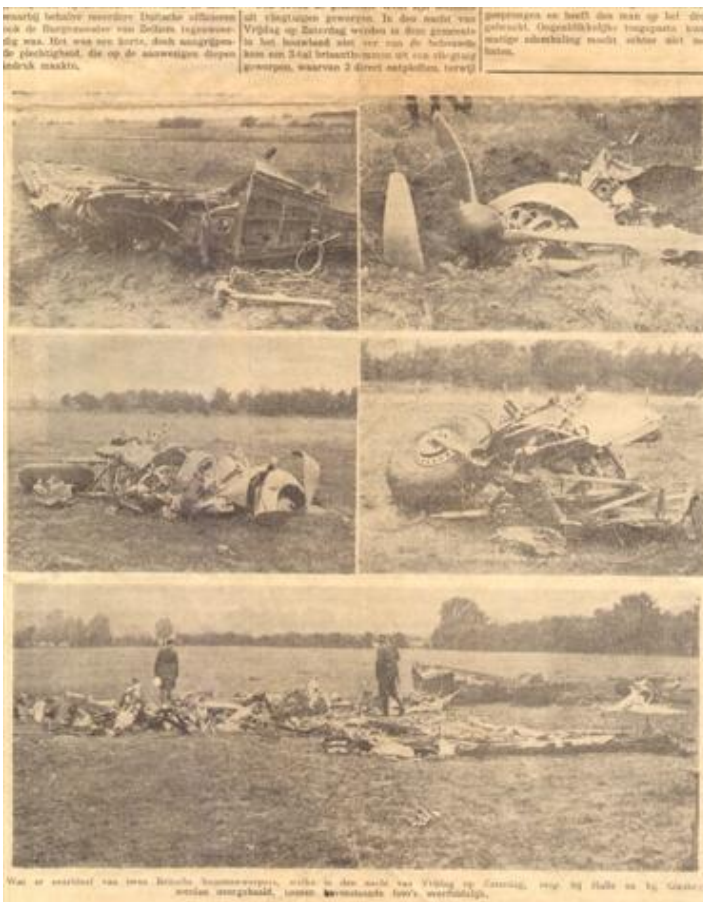

(RIGHT) Killed at Grebbeberg, Derk Jan Heinen, 19 years of age. He lived with his parents at what today is Veengoot 5 in Halle-Heide.

(LEFT) George Bainbridge and his wife Ethel

(RIGHT) George, centre, with his baby son Brian at his friends' house. After his wife Ethel died Auntie Nell took care of little Brian.

Photos from the Graafschapbode newspaper. It is not known which of these photos were taken in Halle and which in Giesbeek, where another plane was shot down the same night.

Photos of the burial; on the right in the photograph is the cross which was to be erected on the grave.

Op het kerkhof te Halle: De zes kisten met de stoffelijke resten der gevallen Britsche vlogers worden door Duitse militairen naar de groeve gebracht. Links boven: Hauptman Hannsen en Burvemeester Rijnstra. Tusschen de beide Duitse militairen: Ds. R. C. G. Troelstra, Ned. Herv. predikant te Halle.

(LEFT) The memorial. Behind it, with a helmet on it, is a (temporary) German war grave.

(ADJACENT PAGE) Photos of the current situation

This photo belongs to Mrs Bainbridge, whose father-in-law George Bainbridge can be seen in the top row, third from the left (between the two pilots)

This photo was owned by the late Louis Duitshof. George Bainbridge is believed to be second from the left.

The memorial stone with the original text and the amended version.